

Public note

Bruno Pedro

Friday, February 4, 2022

We have to consider a wide range of use cases in digital transformation projects. Some of these use cases are short-term interactions such as a user or a system invoking a service and expecting an immediate response. An example would be to getting the list of products under a certain category in a shopping portal. However, there can be a significant number of use cases that require more complex interactions with multiple systems as we discuss below.

Found on Applying Event-Driven Architecture in Digital Transformation Projects | by Chathura Ekanayake | Medium on 2022-02-04 10:53:14.

Tags: #event-driven #asynchronous #events #architecture